"Translation."

Notes: If any.

Scene 19:

Jing-ai... (s1e1sc19_1.mp3)

jing-AI...

"Fuck me."

Notes: Again, this is an English word now, so the ai part is pronounced just like the word "eye" in English. Listen to the audio for intonation.

Scene 23:

VáKi (s1e1sc23_1.mp3)

VA-ki

"Votan POW camp"

Notes: This is a Castithan abbreviation of vájuvana kyérushwano. You can add "Votan" to the front if you'd like it to be longer, but VáKi should be understood as "Votan POW camp".

tishinna (s1e1sc23_2.mp3)

ti-SHIN-na

"little Irathient animal"

Scene 30:

chop (s1e1sc30_1.mp3)

CHOP

"piss"

Notes: That's the English word "chop". See "Insults" document for explanation.

Scene 35:

gyándurā (s1e1sc35_1.mp3)

GYAN-du-ra

"giant balls"

Notes: Irathient for "boulders".

Scene 43:

hakikshis (s1e1sc43_1.mp3)

ha-KIK-shis

"cleaners"

Notes: I was thinking that it'd probably be the Liberata that establish dry cleaning stores or laundry houses, so they'd probably use their own term.

Scene 44:

sagnogyi (s1e1sc44_1.mp3)

sag-NO-gyi

"scum"

Scene 45:

Nanggo! (s1e1sc45_1.mp3)

NANG-go!

"Fuck!"

skrugging (s1e1sc45_2.mp3)

SKRUG-ging

"fucking"

scotch (s1e1sc45_3.mp3)

SCOTCH

"crew"

Notes: I wanted to give you an option to drop in for "crew" when Alak's addressing Rafe. This derives from the Castithan word skacho, which itself derives from the word for "pack" (as in "a pack of wolves").

jek (s1e1sc45_4.mp3)

JEK

"shit"

Notes: I like this better here; think it sounds good. Plus, saying "won't do fuck" also makes sense.

Scene 50:

hanjo (s1e1sc50_1.mp3)

HAN-jo

"fuck"

Notes: First syllable will rhyme with either "Dan" or "don" depending on the English accent of the character.

Scene 56:

skrug (s1e1sc56_1.mp3)

SKRUG

"fuck"

Scene 59:

Gyadáke! (s1e1sc59_1.mp3)

gya-DA-ke!

"Holy fuck!"

Scene 62:

skrugging (s1e1sc62_1.mp3)

SKRUG-ging

"fucking"

Scene 63:

jekkers (s1e1sc63_1.mp3)

JEK-kers

"fuckers"

Notes: Another option is "skruggers". I'm a bit ambivalent as to which will serve better—or if an entirely new word is needed. Feel free to make suggestions.

fánayo (s1e1sc63_2.mp3)

FA-na-yo

"vig"

Notes: I see you have "the" also in the angle brackets, but I'd go ahead and use this as an English word (i.e. "The fanayo on all debts is forgiven for any man who joins the battle!" [by the way, note the use of "is" there as opposed to "are"; believe that's a grammar error in the current version of the script]). This might also be reduced by English speakers to fan (pronounced in between "fawn" and "fan" in Castithan, so probably just as "fan" by English speakers), but this would be an English shortening, not a Castithan shortening.

Scene 74:

skrug (s1e1sc74_1.mp3)

SRKUG

"shit"

Scene 109:

jek (s1e1sc109_1.mp3)

JEK

"shit"

Notes: Jek is from Indogene, but feel free to use "skrug" if you wish.

Scene 123:

Thezuháktu. (s1e1sc123_1.mp3)

the-zu-HAK-tu

"Defiance"

Notes: This literally means "survival".

Thevvúsu. (s1e1sc123_2.mp3)

thev-VU-su

"Defiance"

Notes: This is the closest to a literal translation of "defiance".

Thezédu. (s1e1sc123_3.mp3)

the-ZE-du

"Defiance"

Notes: This is more like "ideological opposition".

Thezénya. (s1e1sc123_4.mp3)

the-ZEN-ya

"Defiance"

Notes: This means "coming together" or "gathering".

Thegbáru. (s1e1sc123_5.mp3)

theg-BA-ru

"Defiance"

Notes: This is closer to "perseverance".
